Vestas has partnered with the team at Elwood Staffing to help recruit and place the workers needed to meet both training and production demands. Elwood Staffing is slated to host multiple hiring events spanning the Denver metro and northern Colorado areas from late September to January. To kick off the community hiring events, Elwood and Vestas will host a joint open house at the Vestas Nacelles facility in Brighton, CO, on Saturday, October 20, from 9:00 am to 12:00 pm. The hiring event at the Nacelles facility will allow candidates to preview potential jobs duties. Hiring managers will be on-site and prepared to extend on-the-spot job offers, expediting the hiring process for qualified candidates.

Elwood has an array of immediate opportunities available in the Brighton facility, including positions in logistics and production. The positions vary from day or night shift opportunities with starting hourly pay rates from $16.00 to $18.00 per hour. The positions are temporary-to-hire.

To meet the demand in the growing market for wind energy, Vestas continuously introduces new products and utilize its global footprint to meet market demand across regions. Responding to recent market developments, Vestas intends to increase production at its Nacelles factory in Brighton, Colorado. “Vestas is a great place to build a career, and we’re excited to host a local job fair to introduce people to our culture,” said Scott Winner, Brighton Assembly Factory Manager. “We are looking to hire people who are passionate about being part of something bigger.”

Vestas offers a robust benefits package that rivals its competitors and includes medical, dental, vision, PTO, 401K, and more. The company currently employs roughly 3,500 Coloradans and operates four manufacturing facilities across the state.
